

Promotion of Positive Images of the Older Person

WINNER

Kristopher Flanders
NITV The Point
Elders Games

For over ten years, Aboriginal elders from New South Wales have competed in the Elders Olympic Games. This competition involves elderly participants testing their skills in a range of events.

The Elders Games were started initially to gather and reunite families and friends and, while retaining that original notion, it is now an important way for Aboriginal elders to also think about their mental and physical wellbeing.

