Ben Doherty and Abdul Karim Hekmat
Guardian Australia

Over more than six months of careful research and clandestine interviews, Ben Doherty and Abdul Karim Hekmat produced the first comprehensive account of Australia's invisible asylum seeker community, accompanied by Hekmat's powerful photographs and video.

These are the people whose fate is unknown, who spend years of poverty and vulnerability waiting for an Immigration Department decision that will decide their future. Their stories are documented in this work, through interviews with over 40 men, women and children across Australia
