This documentary is an intimate, deeply moving portrait of two people wrestling with one of the most difficult ethical issues of our time: euthanasia.

After eight months of delicate negotiation and trust-building, reporter Brett Mason and producer Calliste Weitenberg gained unprecedented access to Peter Ketelslegers, a 33-year-old father-of-two and Simona de Moor, a physically healthy 85-year-old, two people who both seek euthanasia. The broadcast revealed deep flaws in current legislation and safeguards.
